HALLOWE'EN (All Hallows' Eve)

The Celtic calendar, based on the agricultural and pastoral year in the northern hemisphere, began on November 1, which our ancestors celebrated with the great festival of Samain. Surplus livestock was slaughtered for winter food, and sheep were mated to provide the following year's stock. Samain was believed to be a time when natural laws were suspended, and ghosts and demons roamed abroad. It was a time, too, when great fires were lit to ensure the renewal of life in the earth after its long winter sleep. This all-important day could not be ignored by the early Church, who rededicated the day to the saints in Heaven. It was instituted in AD835 and called All Saints' Day. Traces of Samain still remain in Hallowe'en (All Saints' Eve) on October 31 and its traditional associations with ghosts and witches. On this night a young girl hoped to see the candlelit reflection of her future husband in the mirror. There were other similar superstitions associated with romance, connected to Hallowe'en. Hallowe'en was said to be one of the best nights to see fairies in the twilight and at midnight. (From "Folklore Myths and Legends" - Reader's Digest.)

O'NEILL REUNION

About 60 descendants of Urban and Elizabeth O'Neill gathered at Bungonia for a family reunion on Sunday, September 7th.

Urban's parents, Thomas and Elizabeth, lived at "Brisbane Grove", now part of "Maxwell Park" owned by Margaret and Arthur Davey.

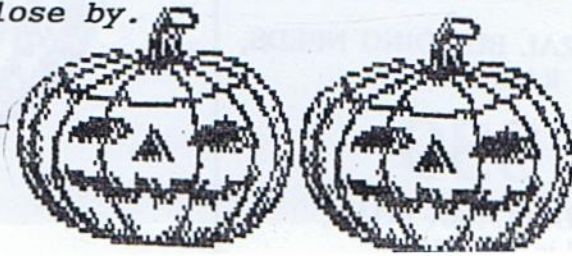

All the children attended the Bungonia Public School and Urban farmed the property until the 1920's when he and his wife, Elizabeth, moved to Goulburn.

The reunion day began at St. Michael's with Mass celebrated by Frs. John and Patrick O'Neill and Fr. Laurie Blake. After lunch at the Community Hall, the family visited the cemetery and the ruins of the old home at Brisbane Grove.

David O'Neill, who was chief organiser, said everyone had a marvellous day, and the rain, which had been threatening all day, held off until just before they left the farm.

Our roving reporter enjoyed the cup of coffee she had recently at the newly-established coffee shop at Marulan, next to the butcher's shop. She noted with interest that a ladies' hairdresser has also opened a business close by.

Matters so far discussed have included holding local arts and cultural workshops, local exhibitions, local sales outlets, and the possible appearance of visiting guest speakers.

CAPTAIN'S REPORT FOR SEPTEMBER 1997.

On the 19th August, Bungonia 4, Bungonia 4-2, Bungonia 3, and Support 3 - were called out to a house fire at Mrs Strange's on the Tarago Road.

The fire, which caused severe damage to a cupboard and contents in the sink area, had been extinguished by 2 neighbours, just before the first Bungonia tanker arrived. Extensive smoke damage had been caused throughout the house, and the fire was believed to have been caused by chemicals igniting under the sink.

This should be a warning to householders to be careful as to how and where they store household chemicals, as this fire was starting to reach a really dangerous stage when the neighbours extinguished it.

Many thanks to all the members who have been working hard towards the shed opening, and to those who have responded to call-outs.

Charlie Klein, Fire Captain

June Moore, of "Pine Hill", shares with us this observation ...

SENIOR CITIZENS DEFINED:

We were before The Pill, television, frozen food, credit cards and ball point pens. Time-sharing meant togetherness, not computers, and a chip was a piece of wood. Hardware meant hard ware and software wasn't even a word. We were before pantyhose, drip-dry clothes, dishwashers, clothes dryers and electric blankets. We got married first and THEN lived together. Girls wore Peter Pan collars and "cleavage" was something butchers did. We were before Batman, vitamin pills, disposable nappies, pizzas, instant coffee and Chinese take-aways. Cigarette smoking was fashionable, grass was for mowing, pot was something you cooked in and a gay person was the life of the party. AIDS meant beauty lotions or help for someone in trouble. How times have changed! ANON.

LANDCARE

LANDCARE UPDATE. OCTOBER 1997.

INVERARY CREEK LANDCARE GROUP.

As I write this article we are receiving good Spring rain which will ensure the recently planted 60,000 P. radiata an excellent start. Now you should be considering fertilizing and post spraying. Good weed control is probably the most essential part of successful tree establishment. It is quite pointless using fertilizer without weed control, as it promotes weed growth and moisture loss at the expense of the trees.

Weed control using chemicals should not commence until at least 4 weeks after planting to minimise loss as trees are under stress. While liquid applications have shown to give best results, the cheaper and more practical method for small blocks is a spot application of weedicide granules. A weed-a-meter designed in New Zealand and sold under license to Macspread, is an ideal control method. To give the correct dose for P. radiata, use No 3 trigger pressed twice to apply 4.4 gms / tree. This will provide an area of 1 metre diameter around each tree weed free for at least a year. Take care in application to see there is no wind drift and every tree is treated only once, preferably on moist soil.

Fertilizing involves careful application around a tree at about 20 cms from the trunk. Use 150 gms of starterphos, avoiding contact with the needles, as this can cause severe damage.

The NELDER along Inverary Road has now been planted with 11 different genetics from the best available to poor genetics. The combination of genetics and spacing should show up in growth rate to give the ideal combination for this area. Keep an eye on the development of the trial.

A small grant of $3955 has been received to conserve a small area of native remnant vegetation along Inverary Road. Remnant areas are worth preserving to maintain their bio diversity and also to provide round posts and stays, as well as seeds. By elimination of stock, some direct seeding and planting the area will soon revert to healthy remnants.

If anyone is looking to diversify, using natives, there is a small niche market for select Eucalypts for floral work. The Rankin's Egaline Nursery near Tumbaramba, employs 3 girls full time on harvesting of several Eucalypt species for the Melbourne market. Maybe we have some landowners interested in the Sydney market.

FORM PRUNING of last years plantings can be done anytime in the next few months to ensure the trees you are growing have the correct form. This gives a chance to correct Wallaby damage.

NEXT FIELD DAY on SUNDAY 2nd NOVEMBER we revisit 2 of our previous Salt Action Projects, finishing at Diane Canini's for lunch. The day will commence at the Yellow Dam Nelder Wheel site and then on to seed collecting. We will show you how to collect and store native seeds. Remember the Group owns a direct seeder which is available for members use. Direct seeding provides a cheap and efficient way of regeneration.

ACID SOILS are now being highlighted by the Dept. of Agric. We will be applying for project work on Acid Soils involving A.N.U. Students. The plan is for P. radiata trials with different lime applications on the head of Bob's Creek. There will be a big potential for students to monitor water quality and growth response of P. radiata to lime. We have large areas of presently unproductive acid soils which can be used for economic agroforestry. The pines of course, also control serrated tussock, without costly spraying.

Water Supply: From Woe to Go

This tale is worth telling even though it does not strictly relate to Bungonia.

The upgrade of Marulan's water supply is now finally under way and there should be clean fresh water coming through the pipes early next year.

The scheme originally began in the early 1990s and Council sought a 55% subsidy from the State Government so that ratepayers would not be financially overburdened. But with every meeting, the costs kept rising. The final straw was the EPA's introduction earlier this year of "environmental flows" restrictions on rivers which meant that there could not be unrestricted pumping of water from the Wollondilly.

This added literally millions of dollars to Marulan's water scheme and made it totally unaffordable. (The last estimate was: $2.7 million plus up to $8 million to buy and pump water from the Bowral area.)

Council then literally engineered its own state-of-the-art system which will come in at around $750,000. The Minister for Land and Water Conservation, Kim Yeadon, has verbally approved the scheme and Council is keenly awaiting his written approval.

Full credit goes to the Mayor and Robert Mowle on this one. Congratulations to them both!

Development Applications On Public Exhibition

An application, together with a full EIS on the proposal, for a Mushroom Substrate Production Plant on the property known as Wandis is on public exhibition until Friday, 10 October, 1997, at Council, the Library in Goulburn and Marulan Post Office.

Applications Approved

- An ostrich and deer farm on the Goulburn-Windellama Road.
- A seed production and packaging plant off Koorringaroo Road had been approved with a number of conditions which include upgrading a specified Crown road to provide suitable access to the property.

Applications Refused

An application to vary the conditions of consent for gravel haulage for a gravel pit on Mogo Road was refused. The original condition of approval required loaded and unloaded trucks to follow a route to Goulburn via the Oallen Ford Road, the Sandy Point-Mayfield Road, Cullulla Road, Bungonia-Tarago Road and Braidwood Road. This condition remains unchanged.

Local Jobs

I was very pleased to read a "Position Vacant" advertisement, placed by a local company, in last month's Times. I sincerely hope a local was successful in applying for the position. It may only be one job, but every job counts.

Roadworks

Work should get under way in October to seal sections of Windellama Road, Boxers Creek Road and Bungonia-Tarago Road.

The major reconstruction work on the Bungonia-Windellama Road will also continue. See the June 1997 edition of Bungonia Times for a full description of the work involved.

Grants

Application forms for Capital Assistance from the Department of Sport and Recreation are now available and must be submitted to the Department by 17 October 1997.

Non profit organisations can apply and successful applications receive up to 50% contribution by the Department.

A BEDTIME STORY

Read this heartwarming tale to your little ones and send them to sleep with a smile

Big Boss

"No," Lyn said, "you can't watch the horror movie." Lyn was the new babysitter and I liked her. But right now, she made me mad.

"Why can't I watch it?" I asked.

"I promised your mum," Lyn said. "She says movie monsters give you nightmares."

"Real monsters give me nightmares," I told her. "Not dumb movie monsters."

Lyn looked surprised. "Real monsters?"

"Yes," I said. "And I know where they live."

"Where?" asked Lyn.

I didn't want to tell her.

"If you get ready for bed now," Lyn said, "I'll read you a really good monster story."

"Okay," I said.

When I went to my room, I drew back the curtains to check on Creepy Critter. He hides on the windowsill, ready to sneak out when the light goes off. Tonight he was somewhere else.

I checked in the clothes cupboard. Heeby Jeeby likes to hang there. He pretends to be a jacket or raincoat. My cupboard ponged. But it was only my gym boots. Not Heeby Jeeby.

Last of all, I searched under my bed for eyes glowing in the dark. Sometimes Toe Taster lies there. He likes to nibble juicy little toes.

Under my bed, I found roller-skates, my teddy bear, Julius, and 10 cold, hard globs of bubblegum. But not Toe Taster.

I jumped into bed with Julius. "I'm ready now," I called. Lyn came with her book. She started reading.

The story was about a boy just like me who tamed monsters. His name was Max.

Max danced in the moonlight with Wild Things. They were gruesome. Really ugly. They wiggled their big bottoms and jiggled their jelly bellies and beat their hairy chests. They howled and yodelled and made lots of noise.

If I was as noisy as them, I would be told to keep quiet. But no-one told Max and the Wild Things to be quiet. Max was Boss of the World. He sent the Wild Things off to bed without their supper. They went, and not once did they complain.

Lyn turned the last page of the book.

"I want to be a Big Boss, just like Max," I whispered.

"You can be," said Lyn. "You can be boss of anything. When you're asleep." She crept to the door and blew a goodnight kiss across the room. It landed on my mouth, but I rubbed it off.

"Sloppy!" I hissed.

"Go to sleep, Monster," Lyn said.

I wanted to be a Big Boss. Lyn said I could be. So I closed my eyes and marched into another world.

I met Creepy Critter, half-hidden by shadows; Heeby Jeeby, smelly as cooked cabbage; and Toe Taster, rope-like and slimy, sliding on his yellow belly.

They didn't scare me one little bit.

"Come here, you creeps," I roared. They came.

"I'm the Boss," I told them. "You do what I say."

Creepy Critter's teeth chattered, Heeby Jeeby shivered with fear, Toe Taster quivered.

"Yes, Mr Boss, sir," they stuttered.

"Dance!" I said. They danced.

"In the light," I said. "Where I can see you. Not there in the shadows."

They came into the light, and I could see they were nothing to be afraid of.

"Dance faster," I said. They jiggled and jived, they wiggled and wobbled. They panted and gasped. They fell at my feet.

"No more, please, O Mighty Boss," they begged.

"Bow," I said. Creepy Critter and Heeby Jeeby grovelled at my feet. Toe Taster flattened himself even lower to the ground.

"Smile," I said. They tried. They really did. They stretched the corners of their tight, ugly mouths.

"Smile harder," I yelled. They smiled harder. Ugly, yellow-teethed grins. Their faces cracked with the effort.

"That's enough," I said. Then I sent them away.

"Don't you bother children any more, you hear," I told them. "Or Big Boss will get you. Do you hear?"

"Yes, Mr Boss, sir," they promised as they vanished into darkness.

Next morning, Mum woke me. She made me do all the usual things.

Wash my face. Clean my teeth. Get dressed. Tidy my room. Pack my lunch. Go to school.

I didn't want to go to school. I pulled a face and curled my lip. "I hate school," I said. "Why do I have to go?"

"Because I'm the Boss and you do what I tell you," Mum said. I went, shuffling my feet and mumbling under my breath.

All the way to school.
